the 1990s, the number of people with a diagnosis of schizophrenia has increased in the United Kingdom (Meltzer 1997). The prevalence of schizophrenia in the United Kingdom is estimated to be 1.2% (Meltzer 1997). The prevalence of schizophrenia in the United States is estimated to be 1.1% (Meltzer 1997).

There is a growing awareness of the need to improve the lives of people with schizophrenia. The World Health Organization (WHO) has developed a set of guidelines for the management of schizophrenia (WHO 1993). The guidelines recommend that people with schizophrenia should be treated with a combination of medication and psychosocial interventions. The guidelines also recommend that people with schizophrenia should be treated in a community setting, rather than in a hospital.

the 1990s, the number of people in the UK who are aged 65 and over has increased by 1.5 million (1990–1999) and is projected to increase by a further 1.5 million by 2010 (Office of National Statistics 2000). The number of people aged 65 and over is projected to increase by 2.5 million by 2020 (Office of National Statistics 2000).

There is a growing awareness of the need to develop strategies to meet the needs of the ageing population. The Department of Health (1999) has identified the need to develop a 'new paradigm' for the care of the ageing population. This paradigm is based on the principle of 'active ageing', which is the process of maintaining and enhancing the health, participation and security of older people. The Department of Health (1999) has identified a number of key areas for action, including: (1) promoting healthy ageing; (2) ensuring that older people have access to the services and resources they need; and (3) ensuring that older people are able to participate in society.

The Department of Health (1999) has also identified a number of key areas for research, including: (1) the health and well-being of older people; (2) the social and economic conditions of older people; and (3) the role of older people in society. The Department of Health (1999) has also identified a number of key areas for policy development, including: (1) the health and well-being of older people; (2) the social and economic conditions of older people; and (3) the role of older people in society.
